

EVELYN THAW IN BITTER DUEL WITH JEROME

Defendant's Wife Bravely Meets Cruel Thrusts of District Attorney in Continuation of Her Cross-Examination To-day.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. The trial of the Thaw case continued today in the courtroom of the New York Supreme Court. The district attorney, Mr. Thayer, continued his cross-examination of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw. The witness, Mrs. Thaw, was asked a series of questions regarding her husband's behavior and the events leading up to the murder of Dr. George H. Jones. She answered the questions with a calm and dignified bearing, despite the harsh and often cruel nature of the questions.

Thaw Smiles Complacently During Torture of Evelyn

It was when Jerome began his frantically brutal questions, when the woman supposedly loved by Thaw, said at weeping of her good name began to turn the District Attorney's questions as best she could, and when Thaw still looked on and smiled complacently, the character of the prisoner was made plain. Any man with red blood in his veins when I have ever known, who has in Thaw's place, would have been going up in his seat, crying about the beating of the woman's heart. He would have offered himself to the electric chair, the rope, the rifle, the garrote, any death known to man, to get away from the shame of it and to save the woman who bore his name. London Mail.

THE BACK BAY

In the streets of Iorque de Zenia, an Italian, the police of the Hancor street station believe they have one of the gang members who broke first law by forcing the residents of the Back Bay and Rock Hill districts from their homes.

Zenia went into a pawnshop and offered for sale a watch valued at $100. The watch was later claimed by H. A. Sullivan of Rotoris, who said he had lost it.

The watch will appear in court today.

Apprehended just as he was boarding Southern train, he was removed forcibly and taken before a magistrate. Heffner, who is merely a boy, was liberated on nominal bail to appear before the Master term of the County Court.

If You Are In Good Form, Stay That Way

One of the most wonderful things that First uses is to reduce the weight to perfectly normal when the patient is neither too fat nor too lean.

This means that it does not take off an amount of flesh that it makes you look "saggd," but it takes just enough off to make you appear in perfect form. The flesh will be evenly distributed over the body, and you will weigh just exactly what you should naturally weigh.

One of the great ways to keep from getting too fat is to take a little "Hengo" every few days. Doing this will let it draw off too much flesh, know what that will reduce you to normal, on the average, half Hengo will both help and keep you known to perfectly put flesh on very thin people, and build them up to medium weight.

YOUNG ASTOR'S WIFE IS TRUE TO UNCLE SAM

Admires the English People,
But Is Still Loyal to America.

IS VISITING HER SISTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. Mrs. Waldorf Astor is a girl at the home of her sister, Mrs. Richard B. Hays, in their town house at No. 40 West 57th street. The pretty wife of the millionaire has come over to see her sister, who is now in the city without attending the formal coming out of her lovely young sister, Miss Nora. The daughter of Virginia, who is now in the city to visit her sister, is now in the city to visit her sister.

Later on the daughter will go over to London to be crowned there by Mrs. Astor.

Talks of English Home.

Yesterday, when she was at the home of her sister, Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Waldorf Astor, who will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of her marriage on the 21st of the month, was in the city without attending the formal coming out of her lovely young sister, Miss Nora. The daughter of Virginia, who is now in the city to visit her sister, is now in the city to visit her sister.

Still an American.

While admiring English people and the life of that country, Mrs. Astor says she is an American and nothing could make her be other than such. A Virginia girl and an American girl, she is a true American.

Punish the Guilty Officers at Newport

Naval Apprentice Hartnett's Death Should Put an End to Brutal Naval "Sport"

The ghastly affair had been elaborately arranged. Hartnett and Master-at-Arms Manning, his slayer, had quarreled over a matter of discipline, and had come to blows, but were begged to defer a violent settlement of their difficulties until the ship's officers and crew could be furnished with entertainment thereby.

The ship's searchlight was turned on an improvised ring on the gun deck, and there, with bare fists, the two men fought by rounds until the younger man, dazed and bleeding, staggered to the floor, where he lay dead.

Without the INSTIGATION OF THE SHIP'S OFFICERS this deadly encounter could never have taken place. That the men in whose charge are placed the lives of the sailors of the United States should not only arrange and witness such a murderous battle themselves, but should permit 500 of the crew to stand by the ringside and cheer the exhausted combatants to fresh efforts, is a matter which demands INSTANT INVESTIGATION AND HEAVY PUNISHMENT.

Every officer having a hand in the thing should be charged with being an accessory to the terrible result. When men, whether they be officers and gentlemen or Bowery sports, elect to indulge in "sport" which may cost human life they must be visited with the consequences of the blood-lust which prompts them to seek such terrible entertainment.

Many prize fights have disgraced the navy, but only when one results fatally does the public learn of it. For none of them can the officers escape responsibility. They are men of education. They are presumed to be gentlemen.

But when they permit men subject to their orders to batter, bruise or kill one another, to make a gundeck holiday, they prove themselves utterly unfit to command or to walk the same decks with the brave men of the navy.

The speedy punishment of those who had the slightest share in Tuesday's atrocity and the absolute prohibition of prize fights on the ships of the navy in future will not efface the stain that has already smirched the service, but it at least will prevent any more killings for the sport of brutal quarterdeck gentlemen.

Enjoy the Cold Weather

Let nobody tell you that it ever is too cold to go abroad.
Merely COLD weather never harmed anybody.

“Colds” are “caught” by sudden changes of temperature, and if you do not dress too warmly you will not become overheated and thus “catch cold.”

Clear, cold weather is the best of all weather, and it is just as good at night as in the daytime.

Keep your bedroom window open by night and keep in the open as much as possible by day, and, take our word for it, you will be healthy, wealthy and wise—wealthy in comfort and wise in your generation.

Don't be afraid of THE cold, even if you dread A cold.

Don't be afraid of THE cold, even if you already A cold.

A Misused Word

It is disgusting to hear a woman speak of herself as the "mother" of a cat or dog. No animal appreciates this word or is made more comfortable

Life is too great and beautiful to regard it as ruined by the loss of a pet animal.

That these pets get a wonderful hold upon our affections I know from personal experience, and that the death of a loving animal makes a homesome spot in a heart and a household I fully understand.

But in life and in death animals should not be made to usurp the places of human beings. No four-footed creature should be allowed to become a member of the family.

Next to a human baby there is no small creature so lovable to me as a baby kitten. I have loved hundreds of them up to cat-hood. But I would not enjoy thinking of myself as a mother cat, nor do I believe the kittens have any more affection on my parture is made happier by having its owner forget the proprieties of the decency of life in its treatment, and many sensible people are annoyed and pained by such exhibitions of lack of taste.
